The Pyramid de Mayo, which stands in the center of the plaza, was the first National Historic Monument inaugurated in 1811. The square is overlooked by the Casa Rosada, current seat of the National Executive Power, the Cabildo, the first colonial-style municipal house dating from 1754, and the Catedral Metropolitana. Continue along Avenida de Mayo, one of the city's most interesting urban areas with buildings of different styles, until you reach the Palacio del Congreso, an eclectic style building with strong neoclassical influences, the seat of national legislative power. Nearby is the Plaza Congreso with the Dos Congresos Monument. The tour continues to Avenida 9 de Julio famous for the Obelisco, the symbol of the city, and the Teatro Colon, recognized worldwide for its exceptional acoustics. Heading south we arrive in picturesque La Boca, with the colorful Caminito, with its distinctive multicolored tin houses still inhabited today. Boca is the cradle of great soccer in Argentina as the legendary teams of River Plate and Boca Juniors were born here, the latter with its famous stadium "la Bombonera." Finally stop to visit the San Telmo neighborhood, one of the oldest in the city, inhabited until the end of the 19th century by aristocratic families. Today it is known for its antiques market held every Sunday and its many "tanguerias," restaurants and bars.
